Stephanie Martin is a Toronto composer and professor at York University. Her new opera 'The Llandoverly Castle' recounts the forgotten story of Canadian nurses who were killed on their hospital ship during the First World War. Recent commissions include works for Victoria Cathedral (BC), Voces Capituli (Belgium), Ex Cathedra (UK), Menno Church (Kitchener-Waterloo), Canadian Men's Chorus (ON), Toronto Diocesan Choir School, Summer Journey Church Music (ON), St. John's Cathedral Albuquerque New Mexico (U.S.A.), Winnipeg Organ Festival (Manitoba), Wilfrid Laurier University and NUMUS (Kitchener-Waterloo.)

Martin has been recording and producing CDs independently since 1996 with Arbor Oak Trio, Schola Magdalena, If I Were a Rich Man Chorale and The Gallery Choir of the Church of Saint Mary Magdalene, with support from the Ontario Arts Council. She has toured to Newfoundland, Quebec, Scotland, Chicago, and throughout Ontario. As former artistic director of the Pax Christi Chorale, she conducted large works with orchestra including Elgar's The Apotheosis of Nelson, a staged production of Handel's Solomon, and the North American premiere of C.H.P. Bach's Mass in G major, reconstructed from the original manuscript. A complete list of works can be found on her website: www.stephaniemartinmusic.com
